

Dr. Ashley Nunes (Harvard Law) is seeking an undergraduate research assistant to work on a project on the economics of decarbonization.

Responsibilities: The position will involve modeling the cost effectiveness of proposed decarbonization policies at both the state and federal level. Candidates should be familiar with the 2022 Inflation Reduction Act and current decarbonization proposals under consideration by major political parties. The position may also involve data cleaning and analysis. I am flexible with work times and funding is available to support up to 15 hours per week.

Prerequisites: Strong command of econometrics is preferred as is familiarity with R, Stata or Python.

Pay rate: $18/hr.

Please email Ashley at anunes@law.harvard.edu with a transcript and brief statement of interest.